

In November 2008, there will be a new President in the United States. There is a new President in Russia; there are leadership changes in different parts of the world. I think these are opportunities for governments to take a fresh look at their Human Rights record and to set certain things right.