

For the United States, the new President, I hope, will close down Guantánamo, will repeal the Military Commission's Act, will denounce the use of torture and other forms of ill treatment and will put the United States forward as a human rights champion. The world needs the United States committed and engaged on human rights.